BANK WILL ERECT OFFICE BUILDING

Manchester National Bank Completes Plans for Big Structure in South Richmond.

Plans have been completed for the erection of a new home for the Manchester National Bank, which will be the largest and most comfortable building in South Richmond. It will be located at the southwest corner of Eleventh and Hull Streets, on the site now occupied by the stores of J. T. Albright & Son. The property was purchased by Colonel Frank P. McConnell, president of the bank; Dr. E. P. Rucker, Robert S. Trump and James F. Ryland from the Charleston estate, at a cost of about $11,000.

An architect from New York has submitted plans to Colonel McConnell and the bank directors. The building committee, consisting of Colonel McConnell, Joseph A. Dart, Dr. Rucker, Mr. Trump and Mr. Ryland, has practically made its decision, although the present plans are subject to alterations. The building will front fifty feet on Hull Street, extending 155 feet to the rear. It will be four stories high, constructed of brick and stone. There will be a large hall on the top floor, which will be used for public meetings. The bank will occupy the lower floor, and the rest of the building will be rented for offices.

Work on the structure is expected to be started this spring, and the bank will probably be installed in its new quarters before winter. The institution is capitalized at $150,000, and is growing steadily. Its officers and directors are leading business and professional men of the Southside.

SEEKING APPEAL TO HIGHER COURT

Virginian Railway Claims Right to Its Use of Hand Brakes.

NEW PROBLEM IS RAISED

Claims Law Is Satisfied With Proper Equipment of Cars.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Lynchburg, Va., March 7.—At the spring sitting of the United States District Court, which will be convened here on Tuesday by Judge Henry C. McDowell, the case of the United States against the Virginian Railway will be argued before Judge McDowell upon an application for an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Richmond.

The case involves a test of the safety appliance laws governing interstate shipments, or rather interstate trains; and, it is said, the question has never before been raised since the statute requiring air-brake equipped freight cars became effective. On the Virginian Railway, a railway built primarily for the transportation of immense train tonnage from the West Virginia and Southwest Virginia coal fields to tidewater at Norfolk, there is a long, heavy grade between Goodview and Huddell, two Bedford County stations. For a long time it was the custom of freight crews on eastbound coal trains to stop at Goodview, apply hand brakes and drop down the incline with a train composed of from sixty to ten loaded coal cars, controlled entirely by hand.

Agents of the Interstate Commerce Commission learned of this condition, and the railway company was summoned here on the charge of violating the safety phases of the statute. The case was tried last September, several days being consumed in the hearing of expert testimony, after which judgment was given against the defendant company to the extent of $200.

It was maintained by the defendant company that a train of the tonnage usually transported by this system could be controlled with more safety by the ordinary hand brake than by the air brake, and that it was for this reason that the company did not depend on the air-controlled brakes. It was contended that the letter of the statute is complied with by the railway when it equips its cars with brakes which conform to the stipulations of the statute, and in using the hand brakes it is done in the interest of safety, and, it is claimed, the company has a perfect right so to do without breaking the law.

Many Cases of Smallpox. The smallpox situation in this section, while it has not yet reached an epidemic stage, is nevertheless somewhat alarming. In the city there are seven cases, four in the smallpox hospital and three in strict and carefully watched quarantine in different portions of the city. In the past two months there have been probably as many as twenty or twenty-five cases in the city, and, strange as it may seem, probably a majority of them have been white people. With a well organized health department watching the situation in the city, little apprehension is felt as far as the city is directly concerned, but, owing to laxity in the counties immediately around the city, there is an uneasiness in these districts.

In all directions from Lynchburg smallpox is to be found. In Amherst, Pittsylvania, Bedford and Campbell Counties, and new cases are being reported almost daily. Yesterday the first case was found in Madison Heights. Here is a community of 3,000 people in Amherst County, a suburb of Lynchburg, wholly without form of local government excepting that afforded by Amherst County. This case has been quarantined, but without careful supervision the quarantine will amount to very little. There have been no deaths in this section from the disease since it appeared three months ago. In Lynchburg there never was anything before similar to the wholesale vaccination as was accomplished here when the contagion first appeared, but this has not been nearly as general in the counties or suburbs.

May Meet in Lynchburg. Since Petersburg Christian Endeavor societies have notified President C. M. Campbell of the Virginia Christian Endeavor Union that it will be impossible for them to entertain the State convention in May, despite their invitation at the Staunton convention last spring, it is probable that the next convention will be brought to this city. A meeting of the State executive committee will be held here shortly, and if no other city desires to entertain the convention it will be held in the Hill City.
